How to stop message pop ups on android. How to block pop up messages on samsung. How to block a pop up website on android. How to block all pop ups on android.

Android notifications are great, but they're not perfect. The way that some notifications pop up on the screen can be annoying, especially if they're not important. Thankfully, you can stop this from happening. The bad news is that there's no way to turn off pop-up notifications all at once. You'll have to do it individually by app. The process is easy, though, so if you do it every time an annoying notification comes in, you'll have things cleaned up in no time. First, swipe down from the top of your device's screen (once or twice, depending on your phone or tablet's manufacturer) and tap the gear icon to open the Settings menu. Next, select "Apps & Notifications." Tap "See All [Number] Apps" for the full list of installed apps. Find the app that's giving you annoying pop-up notifications. Now, select "Notifications." Here, you'll see all of the different Notification Channels for the app. Unfortunately, you'll have to go into each channel separately to turn off pop-up notifications. Select one to get started. Next, look for "Pop On Screen" and toggle it off. Repeat this process for any app as well as the Notification Channels you'd like to stop popping up. From now on, when a notification arrives, the icon will only appear in the notification bar. No pop-ups will get in your way. RELATED: What Are Android Notification Channels? By Chad Buleen | Hemera Technologies/Photos.com/Getty Images Like other Windows operating systems, Microsoft Windows Vista features settings that can help users manage what to do with pop-ups. Pop-ups are small web browsers that often appear when you open up a new web page. While pop-ups sometimes include relevant content to what you are viewing, pop-ups often feature advertisements. Because pop-ups can be an annoyance, Vista allows users to easily block them. If you want to view pop-ups, you can change the pop-up blocker settings. Click on the "Start" button at the bottom of the Vista desktop home screen and then click on the "Internet Explorer" icon. Click the "Tools" menu header at the top of the page. A menu will appear just below "Tools" that includes the "Pop-up Blocker" menu item. Click on "Pop-up Blocker." Click on "Turn On Pop-up Blocker." Vista will now block pop-ups when they attempt to appear. pixino/Shutterstock.com Google Chrome does a great job at blocking pop-up windows out of the box, but sometimes it prevents them even if you're expecting one from a trusted site. Here's how you can take control and allow or block pop-ups in Chrome. By default, Google Chrome disables pop-ups automatically in the browser; something easily overlooked because that's how the internet should be presented. Not all pop-up windows are malicious or invasive. Some websites use them for legitimate reasons. How to Allow Pop-Ups From a Specific Site When Chrome blocks a pop-up from a website, it displays an icon with a red X in the corner of the Omnibox. If you suspect this is an error and want to see pop-ups from this website, click on the icon to see site-specific options, select "Always Allow Pop-ups and Redirects" and then click "Done." After you click "Done," refresh the page to save your choice and see any intended pop-ups on this website. Alternatively, if you just want to see a pop-up one time, click the blue link in this window and you'll be redirected to the pop-up that was initially blocked. RELATED: How to Make Chrome Stop Offering to Save Credit Card Data How to Block Pop-ups from a Specific Site Chrome does a great job at blocking a majority of pop-ups, but sometimes a pop-up squeaks through—or you accidentally click "Allow" instead of "Block"—and makes its way onto your screen. To explicitly block a website from showing pop-ups, you can add it to Chrome's block list. Click the menu icon, and then click on "Settings." Alternatively, you can type chrome://settings/ into the Omnibox to go directly there. Next, select "Security and Privacy" from the sidebar. Locate the Security and Privacy section and choose the "Site Settings" option. Scroll down in the list of settings and then click the "Pop-ups and Redirects" option. For a website that you've accidentally added to the Allow list, you can promptly revoke its permissions to have Chrome start blocking its pop-ups again. Otherwise, you will have to add the problematic URL to the block list manually. We'll take you through both cases below. Under the Allow heading, find the problematic website, click More (three dots), then click "Block." This moves the URL from the Allow list to the Blocked list. If the site isn't listed under either heading, click the "Add" button to the right of the "Block" heading. In the prompt that opens, type the URL of the website you want to block and then click "Add." Note: When providing the web address, if you want to block all pop-ups across the whole site, use the [*.] prefix to catch all subdomains from the website. The web address and all of its subdomains are now under the "Block" list, and Chrome should handle any future pop-up requests from this site. How to Allow All Pop-ups Globally allowing pop-ups isn't recommended, as they can be intrusive and annoying, but if for some reason you need to allow every site to display pop-ups, this is how you can bypass Chrome pop-up blocker. If you need to let a specific website to show them, you should add it to the "Allow" list mentioned in the method above first. Open Chrome and head back to Settings > Site Settings > Pop-ups and Redirects, or type chrome://settings/content/popups into the Omnibox and hit Enter. At the top, select "Sites can send pop-ups and use redirects." By Eric Summers | internet image by Jean-Michel POUGET from Fotolia.com Internet pop-ups can be an annoying distraction when you are trying to read your favorite website or play an online game. Not only can they be a nuisance, they can also tie up valuable system resources and if the pop-up was not coded properly, it may cause your browser or even your entire computer to freeze. Luckily all of the major Internet browsers offer some form of pop-up blocking. Once you activate the blocking feature, then the Web pages you visit will no longer be allowed to display pop-up windows unless you give them permission. Click on "Tools," then select "Options," then select the "Content" tab. Locate the "Block pop-up windows" option and make sure that it is checked if you wish to block all pop-ups by default. Click on the "Exceptions" button if there are sites that you frequent that legitimately use pop-up boxes that you want to enable. You can also visit the sites and Firefox will remind you that pop-ups are blocked and give you the option to restore pop-up functionality for that particular site. Click on "Tools," then select the "Pop-up Blocker" menu item. Verify that the first option says "Turn off pop-up blocker." If it does not, then click on that menu option and the pop-up blocker will be turned on. Click on "Tools," then select the "Pop-up Blocker" menu item, then select "Pop-Up Blocker Settings." If you have a website that uses Internet pop-ups for legitimate reasons, add them to the list of exceptions here. Locate the "Notifications and blocking level" portion of the screen and enable or disable the playing of a sound when a pop-up is blocked. Select the level of automatic pop-up blocking that you wish to use, then click on "Close." Click on the wrench icon in the upper left corner of the screen, select "Options" from the drop-down menu, then select the "Under the Hood" tab and click on the "Content Settings..." button. Click on the "Pop-ups" tab and select "Do not allow any sites to show pop-ups (recommended)" to turn off all pop-up windows. Click on the "Exceptions" button to access the exceptions screen. If you have a site that you want to allow to show pop-ups, click on the "Add" button and then input the name of the site to add it to the exceptions list. By WilliamHanz | Comstock Images/Comstock/Getty Images Pop-under advertisements that are initiated by websites that you visit can be blocked from your web browser. Changing the settings in your web browser to block pop-under ads will also prevent pop-up ads from displaying. Pop-up ads can only be blocked using your web browser if they are opened by web sites that you visit. Pop-under advertisements that pop as a result of adware installed on your computer must be removed from the system using an adware or spyware removal program. Open the Google Chrome browser from your Windows desktop. Click the blue wrench-shaped icon in the upper right-hand corner of the browser. Choose "Options" from the menu that appears underneath the wrench icon. Click the "Under the Hood" label in the Google Chrome Options window. Click "Content settings..." underneath the "Privacy" heading. Click the "Pop-ups" tab. Left click the bubble next to the text that reads, "Do not allow any site to show pop-ups." Click "Close." Pop-under and pop-up ads will now be blocked in Chrome. Launch Mozilla Firefox from your computer's desktop or "Start" menu. Left click on the "Tools" button located on the menu bar towards the top of the Firefox window. Select "Options" from the drop-down menu that appears. Left click on the "Content" icon near the top of the window that opens. Click the empty box next to "Block Pop-up Windows" to place a check mark in it. Click "OK" at the bottom of the "Options" window. Restart Firefox by closing the browser and opening it back up. Pop-up and pop-under ads will now be blocked automatically. Start the Safari browser from your computer's desktop. Click "Safari" in the left corner of the menu bar (next to the Apple icon). Move your cursor to highlight the "Block Pop-Up Windows" option in the menu. Click on "Block Pop-Up Windows" to place a check mark next to the text. Restart the Safari browser. Both pop-under and pop-up ads will now be blocked by Safari. Open Internet Explorer from the Windows desktop. Click on the button labeled "Tools" underneath the address bar. Scroll over the "Pop-up Blocker" button to highlight it in the menu that appears. Left click "Turn on Pop-up Blocker" in the small menu that displays to the right. Click "Yes" when the prompt asking if you are sure that you would like to turn on the Internet Explorer Pop-up Blocker appears. Internet Explorer will now block pop-ups and pop-up ads initiated by websites. Double click on the Opera icon on your desktop to open the browser. Single click on the "Tools" button located on the Opera menu bar. Select "Quick preferences" in the window that is opened. Choose "Block all pop-ups" from the list of available options. Click the "OK" button to save the pop-up blocker settings. Close any Opera windows that are open on your computer. Reopen Opera and the settings blocking pop-up ads will take effect.
